A hand-drawn map of a compound, likely a military installation. The map is enclosed in a rectangular border with 'X' marks at the corners. A horizontal road or path runs across the middle, with an arrow pointing left towards the text 'to Ochemchiri'. The compound is divided into several sections by vertical and horizontal lines. Buildings are represented by rectangles and numbered 1 through 7. Building 1 is a tall, narrow rectangle in the top right corner. Building 2 is a vertical rectangle in the top center. Building 3 is a vertical rectangle on the left side, near the road. Building 4 is a large vertical rectangle in the bottom center. Building 5 is a vertical rectangle in the bottom right. Building 6 is a small rectangle on the right side, near the bottom. Building 7 is a small rectangle on the right side, near the top. Labels include 'TUNG' and 'ZAVOD' in the top center and top right respectively, and 'COMPOUND' in the center. A small box labeled 'A', '6', and 'B' is located in the bottom right corner.
